

OUTLAW UNION WORKERS BUSY

Causing Chaos in Transportation of Country.

USE SPORADIC STRIKES AS THEIR WEAPON

Acting Under Leadership of John Gruneau.

One Big Union Is Desire of the "Outlaw" Union People—Are Drawing Members from the Big Labor Organizations.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The "outlaw" railroad workers have become active again.

Under the leadership of John Gruneau, of Chicago, the "outlaw" workers are making transportation into chaos, through sporadic strikes and are bringing about a nationwide cessation movement from the ranks of the "Big Four" brotherhoods and the American Federation of labor railroad unions, according to information received here today in official labor circles.

Their goal is said to be one big union movement of all railroad workers. They have sent agitators, according to advices, into railroad districts, particularly New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the Midwest to stir up the already dissatisfied and restless railroad workers to revolt against the leaders of the unions.

Their operations, it is claimed, are part of a widespread movement to incite revolt until the "one big union" idea has swept the great mass of organized labor. They are said to be linked in their activities with elements in the American Federation of Labor, "boring from within" under the inspiration of William Z. Foster, leading spirit in last year's steel strike. Before his departure for Russia to attend the Third International conference and confer with Lenin and other Bolshevik leaders, Foster laid the seed for a campaign to organize all the railroad crafts into one union along lines of the Federation of Railroad Workers in England. It is declared in labor circles here.

Ready to Revolt.

Gruneau has declared that 15,000 members of the American Federation of Labor railroad unions on the Pennsylvania system are ready to revolt against their leadership and join his one big union, known as the United Federation of Railroad Employees. He has also announced that the Marine Firemen, Oilers & Water Tenders' union affiliated with the railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor and drawing its membership from the ferryboats, has applied for a charter in his organization, through its president, P. Lynch, of New York City.

Leaders here express apprehension over Gruneau's activities. The railroad workers, chafing under the reins held by their leaders to keep them in line, "sore" at wage cuts and the attitude of the carriers on working rules and conditions, offer fertile field to the one big union agitators, they say and an outlaw strike at this time "would spread like wildfire," causing havoc not only to the railroads, but the railroad unions.

A large part of Gruneau's organization is made up of secessionists and expelled members of the Brotherhood of Trainmen. It is charged.

THE INFLUENCE OF WOMEN IS WANTED

President Harding Talks to a Delegation of Women.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The influence and intuition of American women will be employed in the forthcoming disarmament conference, President Harding declared this afternoon.

A delegation from the National League of Women Voters called and urged the president to name a woman to the American delegation to the conference. The president gave no definite answer to the proposal for a woman member of the commission, but said:

"I am very anxious to have the influence and intuition of women utilized in this great conference and such an arrangement is being worked out satisfactorily."

YOUTH ON TRIAL FOR KENTUCKY MURDER

Killing Is Alleged Result of a Tangled Love Affair.

Whiteburg, Ky., Aug. 17.—Heckham Bates, eighteen, is on trial here for the murder of Elizabeth Sergeant, at India creek, in December, 1919, which grew out of a conspiracy between young Bates, (Irish father and Mrs. James Sergeant, wife of the murdered man. A jury of Clark county citizens has been impaneled here. The hearing of Mrs. Sergeant will follow Bates' trial.

Bates, a conspiracy, a love affair, also, figured in the Sergeant murder.

Elizabeth Bates, now serving eighteen years in the Kentucky penitentiary, was in love with Edith Sergeant, sixteen-year-old daughter of Sergeant, the slain man, who opposed a marriage. Bates, without the father's consent and with a forged certificate, obtained a marriage license. An individual followed against Bates, charging him with forgery. A compromise, however, was reached and the suit was dismissed from court.

December 22, 1919, Sergeant was lured from his home, taken into the mountains and murdered with an old-fashioned shotgun. His body was found a week later by searching parties.

The old-fashioned shotgun was the identical weapon last seen in the hands of Irish Bates. It is said, the day Sergeant disappeared.

A FREIGHT-RATE PROPOSAL SUBMITTED

It Covers Crushed Stone, Gravel and Sand Shipments.

Columbus, Aug. 17.—A joint proposal that freight rates on bulk shipments of crushed stone, gravel and sand be reduced approximately eighteen per cent., was submitted here today, when the state utilities commission resumed its inquiry into prevailing freight rates on shipments within Ohio of road building materials.

Attorney J. W. Wilson, Columbus, chief counsel for the Ohio railroads at the hearing, presented the proposal. It proposes that freight rates be readjusted on a basis of the rates prevailing on August 25, 1920, plus fifteen per cent.

The proposal provides further, however, that the minimum scale of freight rates prevailing on the lower Michigan peninsula be observed in Ohio railroads. Under this arrangement, the Michigan minimum rates would prevail in cases where the readjusted Ohio rates fell below the Michigan minimum figures.

OBENCHAIN IN FIRST BATTLE

Clashes with Authorities Over Possession of Trunk.

BEGINS FIGHT FOR LIBERTY OF ACCUSED

Developments in Murder Case in Los Angeles—Attorneys Laying Plans for Struggle.

Los Angeles, Aug. 17.—The first battle in the defense of Mrs. Madeline Obenchain, charged jointly with Arthur C. Burch with the murder of J. Nelson Kennedy, is under way today, as the result of an attempt being made to prevent the state from seizing a trunk belonging to the accused woman, which arrived here late yesterday. After issuing orders to the management of the hotel which received the trunk not to allow anyone to touch it until a proper court order had been issued, Ralph Obenchain, divorced husband of the defendant, announced his intention of obtaining a restraining order to prevent the authorities from opening the receptacle. It was announced that officials of the district attorney's office planned to open the trunk this morning. In the hope of finding something that might shed new light on the killing of Kennedy.

The trunk was forwarded to Mrs. Obenchain from San Francisco, where she stopped before coming to Los Angeles.

Plans for procuring legal aid for Burch and Mrs. Obenchain are rapidly being formulated. It was stated today and announcement of the names of attorneys who will represent the defendants probably will be made this afternoon or tonight. Obenchain asserted, today, he is satisfied with the evidence he is obtaining and that he had found witnesses whose testimony will, "if substantiated," clear Mrs. Obenchain and Burch.

A Third Party.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—"There's a third party in this murder," in these words, Harry Lawrence, attorney and special investigator for the district attorney's office in Los Angeles, today advanced a sensational theory in the famous Kennedy murder case in California and expressed his belief that Madeline Obenchain, beautiful divorcee and Arthur C. Burch "did not frame Kennedy's death."

Some other woman, disappointed in love, killed the western boy, Lawrence told E. E. Wilson, of Evanston, while he was in that city investigating a new angle of the murder mystery.

"All Burch has to do is sit tight and keep his mouth closed and he will go free," Wilson says Lawrence declared.

"He told me that it was his opinion that Madeline Obenchain and Burch did not frame Kennedy's death, but that some other woman, disappointed in love, had slain him," Wilson said. "Lawrence was of the opinion that this woman happened on the scene just after Burch and Mrs. Obenchain, who had, however, framed to force Kennedy to marry the latter," had held an unsatisfactory conference with Kennedy. He thought the woman or her confederates then shot the man."

RAIN, SOLDIERS, CORN CROP, LOWERING CLOUDS

All Play a Part in Today's Weather Drizzle.

Even though the soldiers passing through Marion today had to march in the rain, it was all right because our fighting men have to stand for a lot worse things, but it was all right because the corn crop needed it. Anyhow, it had to be all right because, even though there be a rain maker or two in the United States, nobody has yet been found that can stop the rain when it once starts.

However, he all that as it may, Marionites can still brag about their garden-spot-of-the-world climate and be pardoned for a spirit of superiority that is bound at times to manifest itself in the hearing of garden-spot dwellers.

Following the hard rain of the morning, the sky was overcast the greater part of the day, and, well, the atmosphere felt so delightfully refreshing!

FARMERS SEE A POOR MARKET

Preparing To Burn Corn as Fuel in Minnesota.

LOWER FREIGHT RATES ARE URGED

Farmers Appear Before Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Iowa farmers are attempting to mature the largest corn crop in the history of the state, with no prospect of a market, and Minnesota farmers are preparing to burn their corn this winter instead of buying coal, farmers told the interstate commerce commission in its investigation of freight rates on grain and hay.

Railroads, by maintaining abnormally high freight rates, will lose the tariff on coal which the farmers would use if they could sell their corn as well as that on the un-dried grain. T. E. Cashman, a Minnesota farmer, told the commission. Lower freight rates on grain and hay, he said, in reply to questions by members of the commission, would increase the volume of traffic, not only in those commodities, but the increase would be reflected in the added purchases by farmers of machinery, household goods, lumber and other necessities.

E. H. Cunningham, secretary of the American farm bureau federation of Iowa and a practical farmer, said that while the railroads probably were suffering as a result of the present readjustment, he believed the situation as regards a basic industry like agriculture should be given precedence in consideration over the carriers, which he described as a commercial industry.

Dr. E. C. Moore of the Iowa state agricultural college was put on the stand by the grain men to establish that costs of producing, transporting and marketing grain were more than the prices received by the farmer. All witnesses were agreed that the market price of grain included transportation cost and that the price paid the farmer was in every case the market price less the cost of handling and freight.

Commissioner Lewis asked whether a reduction of freight rates would not have a tendency to increase shipments to points of consumption, thereby increasing competition and reducing prices. He was told that this probably would be true in the case of hay, but that the reduction in price would not equal the increase in the amount paid the farmer as a result of the reduced rates. Decreased rates on grain, the witnesses said, would not reduce the market price of grain.

ENTIRE SQUARE OF BUILDINGS BURNED

Brooklyn Suffers a Heavy Fire Loss Today.

New York, Aug. 17.—Damage estimated at $1,000,000 was done by a fire that destroyed an entire square block of buildings in the Green Point section of Brooklyn, early today.

The point at which the fire started is not far from the Green Point plant of the Standard Oil company. A short distance off are a group of big gas tanks and for some time fears were felt that the conflagration would spread to these danger points and get beyond control.

The neighborhood is one of frame dwellings and wooden industrial plants and as soon as the serious nature of the fire was seen, the police began turning residents out of their homes. Hundreds fled to the street in their night clothing and watched the firemen at work. The cause of the blaze has not yet been determined.

SEVERAL HUNDRED AT FARMERS' PICNIC TODAY

In Spite of the Threatening Weather.

Notwithstanding the rain several hundred people attended the joint Grange-Farm bureau picnic at Garfield park today, enjoying a bountiful basket dinner, taking part in the athletic contests and the literary program.

Each of the granges of the county furnished a number for the literary program and the principal address of the day was delivered by Howard Leonard, of Eureka, Illinois, president of the Illinois Agricultural association. Mr. Leonard married to Marion with his family and wife evening aspects to start for Springfield, Massachusetts, to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the American Farm Bureau federation. In his speech he dealt principally with the organization of the farm bureau and its aims. He also brought out his ideas of the scope of the work of the county organization as compared with that of the state and national organizations. Grain and livestock marketing also had a place in his talk.

The morning program started with the horseshoe pitching contests. Several of the townships have teams entered in the contest and the pitching is developing some keen rivalry for the championship. Before this contest was completed a picnic dinner was served.

A tug of war is also on the program and this also is causing keen rivalry among the teams from the various townships. Sixteen athletic events make up the remainder of the program and individual awards are to be given to the winners. A record of the points is also being kept in order to determine the township which carries off the honors of this part of the program.

SMALL CHANGES HIS "WAR" PLAN

Yields to Family Pressure. It is Declared.

GOVERNOR IGNORES LEGAL ADVISERS

Will Quietly Go to Trial on Charges Against Him—A Change of Venue.

Springfield, Illinois, Aug. 17.—The sudden collapse of the "war" plans of Governor Len. Small, of Illinois, was due to family "pressure," it was learned here today.

The governor, it was reported, has abandoned all plans to delay his trial on charges of misusing $2,500,000 in state interest funds and to test the legality of his arrest. In this decision, the governor entirely ignored the wishes of his legal advisers. He finally surrendered, his intimate said, to the pleas of Mrs. Small and members of the family.

The strain of his legal difficulties on members of his family, it was said, had seriously concerned the governor. Since the issuance of bench warrants for the governor's arrest, Mrs. Small has gone into retirement at the family home in Kankakee. It was her wish, it was said, that the governor abandon his war plans and go into court with the sole purpose of repudiating the charges brought against him in the Sangamon court. The governor, through counsel, late yesterday, accepted the offer of State's Attorney C. Fred. Mortimer to a change of venue from this county. The acceptance was based on four clauses, the principal one of which retained the right to file any future action on any phase of the case, excepting change of venue.

All four clauses were accepted by the state's attorney in a reply made public here. The state's attorney declared his first offer had held no "catch" phrases, the governor's counsel having taken exception to certain wording. Mortimer also agreed to the governor's suggestion that attorneys for both sides agree upon another county in which the case shall be tried. He announced that Judge E. S. Smith, who issued the bench warrants for Small's arrest would designate the circuit judge to decide the petition for a change of venue. This petition will be heard Tuesday, September 6. The jurist will be either Frank B. Burton or Judge Norman L. Jones.

IRELAND IN A DEFIANT MOOD

er sacrifices than at any time in the past. There was an imposing scene at Mansion House when the second session of parliament opened. Crowds waited for hours for the doors to open, for it had been advertised that the first part of the session would be open to the public. All available positions were taken before the 127 members were in their seats. Soldiers of the Irish republican army who had been wounded in battle with British soldiers and policemen, were given seats of honor. Some hobbled on canes and others still wore bandages over their wounds.

"We can not and will not accept the English peace terms," said de Valera in an address to the members. "The Irish people are not going to be fooled this time. Ireland has not been offered dominion status: The Almighty placed Ireland as the neighbor of Britain and the Irish desire to be neighborly and if Britain were wise she would be friendly. We do not desire to close up England's routes to the sea."

De Valera, Michael Collins, commander-in-chief of the Irish republican army and Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein, occupied the "ministerial bench" in the front row of the meeting.

The London Times said that the members of the Sinn Fein parliament may take it for a fact that the English mind is made up and that "no rhetoric, no sophistry and no appeal to violence can move the electorates of Britain and her dominions to yield on the one cardinal point upon which the constitution of the empire rests."

That one cardinal point, the Times points out, is loyalty to the king and admission of the sovereignty of the British government over the British empire.

To Make Sacrifices.

"We are prepared to make any sacrifices towards Ulster to make Ireland one whole nation and to prevent partition."

The probability that de Valera's verbal rejection of the English peace terms would be followed by a formal message to London, was indicated by Sir William Sutherland, who made the following statement to the International News service: "The cabinet met just before noon and I can state as to the result, on intimations from Dublin, the premier is in a position to announce the ministry's attitude to the house of commons, late this afternoon or this evening."

Officials of the Irish office are loath to believe that the door to further peace negotiations has been closed. They admit that the situation is most critical, but they say that regardless of the Sinn Fein rejection the British government will not adopt an aggressive attitude in Ireland.

The following order was read to all officers and men of the ranks of the Irish republican army.

"Communications between the Irish republican government have been made public and serve to emphasize towards the officers and men of the Irish republican army the paramount importance of being prepared for every contingency that may arise from a military viewpoint. Now, as always, in safeguarding the rights and liberties of the Irish people, they depend upon the Irish republican army. It is our business to be defiant and as highly trained as possible and ready for every emergency. No opportunity should be neglected in improving our drill and training and in making ourselves truly effective soldiers of the Irish republican army. The republic exists now and always will. It remains for us to do our best in its service, realizing that sacrifices we have already made may be less than those we shall be called upon to make in the future. The future lies with us if we do our utmost."

NATION'S TAX BILL TO BE CUT

There would be imposed on corporations of this character a flat additional income tax of twenty-five per cent. of the net income, but if stockholders agreed, they might be taxed upon their distributive shares in the net income of the corporation in the same manner as members of a partnership, such taxes to be in lieu of all income taxes upon the corporation.

Mr. Fordney said some mortgage and investment companies had been obtaining exemptions allowed by law to building and loan associations by operating under the guise of such associations. To prevent such evasions of tax, the chairman explained, the exemption had been limited in the new bill to domestic building and loan associations operated exclusively for the purpose of making loans to members.

Question Answered.

Columbus, Aug. 17.—A session of members of the Ohio Boxing association here ended with the question of the middleweight championship unsettled. A decision is expected to be reached at another meeting here, August 23.

It was announced that until the commissioners decide whether Bryan Downey has taken the championship title from Johnny Wilson, the Ohio association will submit the matter to the national association.

Secretary Horner, of the Cleveland boxing commission, presented arguments which were very favorable for Downey. At the meeting August 23, Wilson's manager, Martin Killeen, is expected to present Wilson's side of the controversy.

The store hereafter will be known as the Irey & O'Connor millinery store and will be conducted along the same lines as heretofore and the same high-class millinery will be carried. Both the proprietors are very well known in the city.

Street Car Hits Auto.—Yesterday afternoon at about 5 o'clock, city street car, No. 202, struck an automobile driven by J. S. Wells, of Cherry street, the accident occurring between Prospect and Oak streets. The street car was traveling west on Center when Mr. Wells backing out from a parking place crossed the track. The motorman immediately reversed the speed and managed to almost stop the car by the time it struck the automobile. Mr. Wells' car was only slightly damaged and no one was injured.

Progress Delayed.—Progress in the move to secure a burying ground for World war veterans has been delayed because of the absence from the city of some of the members of the Marion Cemetery association board, according to the report of the committee at the regular meeting of McGinnis Post, No. 162, American legion, Tuesday evening. It is expected that the committee will have a definite report to make on the project for the next meeting of the post in two weeks. Arrangements for a dance for former service men and their families at White Maple pavilion, August 31, were made at the meeting.

Curious Crowd Watched.—It is not often that good, genuine, hard labor is flattered by the presence of an interested audience. But contrary to the general rule the laborers, who are working for the Car-mody company, which is to erect the new Starmer office building on south Main street, have been watching while at their labors by an ever-changing but, nevertheless, interested crowd of spectators. The rails on the pedestrian detour about the place are lined at nearly all hours of the day. An Osgood steam shovel moves up the thick cement foundation which was once the floor of the Hoch garage. Trucks haul the debris to a dumping ground.

A New Barber Shop For Children Just Opened up in the Children's Store—2nd Floor

Mothers May Now Spend the Time Enjoyably Looking Around Through The Store—While An Experienced Barber—Who Knows Just How To Administer the New Juvenile Hair Cuts Keeps the Young Folks Amused.

WE have often been asked by the mothers of growing youngsters, "Why don't you establish a Children's Barber Shop?"

In the cities virtually every prominent dry-goods store conducts such a shop for the benefit of mothers who ordinarily feel a certain hesitancy in visiting a men's shop.

Marion seems to have reached that stage where such a Children's Barber Shop—devoted to the little folks exclusively—is really required.

In our desire to render the very best possible service—and to make our store even more helpful to the public generally—we have opened this new shop for the young folks.

You will find in charge—an expert barber of long experience—who knows every new "kink" in up-to-date haircutting for the children, and who has an especial aptitude and liking for that work.

Located in a cool, airy, well-lighted space on our Second Floor—this new Barber Shop should prove very popular both with the children and their mothers.

The New Children's Barber Shop

MISS MARY D. BYRNES WEDS MR. HARRY HOLTZ

Ceremony is Performed at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

The following from the News of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, under date of August 13, will be of interest here, as the groom is known in Marion and La Rue.

A pretty wedding took place at noon today in the Fifth street Methodist Episcopal church, when Miss Mary Dorcas Byrnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Byrnes, 522 Macclay street, became the bride of Harry Holtz, son of Mrs. Mary Holtz, 1225 Susquehanna street. The Rev. Dr. Dorsey N. Miller officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white Canton crepe with a picture of white horsehair braid and crepe de chine. Her flowers were white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Beatrice Wells, wore pink crepe de chine with a hat to match, and carried pink roses. Grand Holtz, a brother of the bridegroom, was the best man. Prior to the ceremony, Miss Violette Cassel, the church organist, gave a brief recital.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Holtz will be at home after September 1 at 2156 north Fifth street. For the wedding trip, Mrs. Holtz wore a traveling suit of blue tricotine, and a small tan hat. The bridegroom is connected with the department of parks as park engineer.

There is always ground for the view that the man who is forever questioning the honesty of other people hasn't an over-supply of his own.

"If you think thrift means only saving money," says the Bucyrus Telegraph, "you are mistaken; thrift means also protecting your health." We have always had a sort of a notion that it also meant expending your money wisely.

A WASTE OF MONEY.

An illustration of the manner in which public funds are used in needless printing is presented in the recently distributed pamphlet of the department of labor on "Illegitimacy as a Child-Welfare Problem." This pamphlet compiled by the preceding administration, fills 408 pages. In the first seventy-two pages there is a very elaborate review of the whole pamphlet showing that a study was made of records of illegitimacy in Massachusetts, with facts and conclusions deduced therefrom. The summary shows that one child in forty-four in Massachusetts is born out of wedlock, that about half of the mothers of children born out of wedlock were otherwise of good character, that a large proportion of them were earning their living, that fifty-six per cent. of the children so born had care by others than the parents, that illegitimate birth is a disadvantage and embarrassment to the child, that a large proportion of fathers of illegitimate children do not contribute to their support, and that it is necessary for the state to make provision for the support of illegitimate children where the parents fail in this regard. As remedies for illegitimacy it is suggested that improved industrial conditions, education, recreation, supervision of commercialized amusements and provision for the care of the feeble-minded and defective, would be effective.

These facts and conclusions, which are here set forth in less than fifty lines, are fully detailed in the seventy-two pages of the summary of the pamphlet and would have been adequate for all practical purposes without the remainder of the 408 pages. Most of the facts set forth and remedies suggested are already known in a general way to all social workers and it is doubtful that publication of detailed statistics will aid materially in solving the social problem which is made the subject of the study. In any event, the pamphlet is nearly six times as large as required in order to give all the essential information.

HIS TREAT

NOT WITHOUT GREAT RISK.

Often we have heard the statement that climate is changing, though there is little or no evidence to support the allegation. However, some Canadians have a dream of changing the climate of the eastern portion of the dominion by damming the strait of Belle Isle and turning the cold Labrador current from the Gulf of St. Lawrence out to the open sea. It is a daring idea of man to propose to alter what nature has ordained. The promise is held out that were this plan carried out eastern Canada would gain many degrees in temperature while the New England states would become semi-tropical. A dam ten miles long would be required to accomplish the purpose. This obstacle is not an insurmountable one; in fact it is perfectly feasible, but what would happen were it constructed?

Ocean currents have a marked effect on climate. Were it not for the warm kulf stream the British Isles would have a semi-Arctic temperature. Were it possible to dam the Labrador current and cause it to seek a new channel nobody knows what would happen. There are theories as to the effect, but it is certain that Great Britain would take no chances on permitting anything to be done that might hazard the present climate to the result of lowering the temperature. Man has dared to do many things to improve on nature, but taking liberties with an ocean current is something that has not been tried. It is true that, were the dam built, and it had a bad effect on European climate, it could be blown up and the Labrador current be permitted to resume its former course, but it is not probable that investors would care to expend the money that would be required in such an experiment.

While it is stated that the project has been considered seriously by engineers, it is safe to predict that it will not be undertaken at once. Canada would not be permitted to act on the subject on her own volition. While, the climate of New England would offer opportunities for great improvement, it might upset conditions considerably for the region suddenly to become semi-tropical. Besides that, the northern regions of Europe would object to taking a chance of being suddenly frozen.

The proposition is interesting as a dream, but it possesses too many undesirable possibilities.

BUSINESS IS IMPROVING.

Business is beginning to look up, and an examination of opinions of authorities on industry and finance indicates a widespread belief that the industrial revival will be well under way by fall. Some of the less-optimistic incline toward the view that it will be the spring season before material progress is made. But all agree that improvement is certain.

Out of many opinions just made public that of William F. Morcan, president of the Merchants' Association of New York, may be selected as representative and comprehensive. He discerns a better tone in the business world and adds: "Although few industries have yet benefited by an increased volume of business, there are indications that the country is beginning slowly to pull out of a serious business and industrial depression. The crop outlook, with one or two exceptions, is good. Many of the railroads are reporting increased earnings. Red-dimount rates of the federal reserve banks have been lowered, and there are other indications of easier money."

Coinciding with this and similar opinions, come reports of more men being put to work in railroad shops, of more building contracts being let, of the resumption of work in many mills and factories, and of a freer movement of freight. The weekly report of the American Railway association discloses gains in the amounts of all commodities transported by the railroads during the last week, coal and ore being the only exceptions. The increase of loaded cars over the previous week was 6,222, making the number of cars loaded during the week reach the total of 795,510.

Though small, this increase is sufficient to show that an improvement has set in in business conditions of the country as a whole.

LIFE'S VAUDEVILLE.

[By Dr. James Ball Naylor.]

RURAL OHIO.

Our agitators go up and down the land, seeking only to create more and more unrest and encourage more and more disturbance.

To them, nothing is right — everything is wrong.

If one should give heed to their buncombe, he would rashly and irrationally conclude that the following conditions prevail in America:

That our bankers have all the money; and can make money plentiful or scarce, at their will.

That our business men control all the markets; and can set the prices of commodities, at their pleasure.

That our natural and created wealth is all in the hands of the grasping and merciless few.

That all our mines and forests have been wrenched from the hands of the people.

That our farms are all owned by rich landholders; and that our farmers are mere down-trodden tenants.

But what's the truth?

Well, let's consider farms, farming and farmers; and let's take Ohio as an example.

Ohio is a typical state—an average state. And what are the real conditions in Ohio?

The Ohio Farmer says:

"In spite of all the false conclusions and hideous declarations of the professional 'up-holders,' rural Ohio in the aggregate presents quite a satisfactory situation. The federal census is accepted as official truth, and on its figures many important conclusions are based. It is gratifying to observe, therefore, that out of the 256,698 farms in Ohio 241,075 are operated by American-born farmers. Also, that of those which were reported as to this important point, 177,896 are operated by owners while but 78,844 are operated by tenants."

Pretty good showing—eh?

Doesn't look much like agricultural serfdom, does it?

Ninety-one out of every 100 Ohio farms are owned by American-born farmers.

Seventy-one out of every 100 Ohio farms are operated by their owners.

Doesn't look like the wealthy few are getting control of all the farm lands of the country, does it?

Looks like the average man may have and hold more than the proverbial six feet of earth, doesn't it?

Don't believe these yelping and rowling agitators, friends.

For what is true of our agricultural industry is largely true of our other industries.

America offers opportunities for one and all.

America's a pretty good old country.

Isn't it really refreshing to have a sane and reliable paper, like the Ohio Farmer, bring confusion upon these blatant agitators by telling the plain truth?

More power to the Ohio Farmer!

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Miss Jessie Walker, of Logan, is West Virginia's first woman notary.

A Long Island judge has ordered a husband to obey his wife one day a week.

Many women are already seeking nomination as delegates to the proposed constitutional convention in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Lenora Ward, of Erick, Oklahoma, graduated in the same class with her son at the state university this summer.

Probably the oldest woman druggist in the world is Mrs. Mary Klump, of Allentown, Pennsylvania, who recently passed her 100th birthday.

Mrs. Luther Clay Willis, the first Kentucky woman to receive nomination for the office of magistrate, is a prominent clubwoman of Shelbyville.

On the day after the marriage ceremony the native bridegroom of West Africa shows his appreciation of his wife by powdering her head with fine clay.

One of Queen Mary's chief hobbies is the collection of old Wedgwood pottery, and she has been known to pay several hundred dollars for a single specimen.

Mrs. Lucy A. Pearlmutter, the mother of four children, was one of the several women who recently passed an examination for admittance to the Massachusetts bar.

Women in Holland have formed an organization, the members of which have not only bound themselves to eschew immodest fashions, but they are visiting the shops and asking tradesmen not to expose improper costumes for sale.

China had women soldiers many years ago. In 1853, during the Tae Ping rebellion, an army of 500,000 women was recruited in Nanking. They were divided into brigades of 15,000 each and were commanded by women officers.

Mrs. John Edger, who was appointed jailer of Woodford county, Kentucky, after her husband had been deposed from the office by the governor, performed her duties so satisfactorily that she has now received the regular Democratic nomination for the full term.

A woman well known in New York society recently had an alarming experience at one of the fashionable New England summer resorts. It was no secret among her friends that she had spent a good deal of her time and income taking treatments from beauty doctors, who have undertaken to restore her somewhat faded "youthful" beauty. While taking a refreshing dip in the sea she noticed that she was attracting more than ordinary attention from the beach loungers. Hurriedly retreating to the bath house, she discovered that the sea water, acting upon the cosmetics, had turned her complexion purple, and her carefully dyed Tidian hair to a vivid green!

AN OLD LETTER DUG UP AND SENT FROM GERMANY

It is Received by Henry Bausinger Tuesday.

Henry Bausinger, proprietor of the Home cafe, received a letter Tuesday from his cousin, Adolf Bausinger, of Sigmaringen, Hohenzollern, Germany, enclosing another letter written November 24, 1870, at Pittsburgh by August Frick to Carl Frick in Germany.

The letter, which is written in German, was found by Mr. Bausinger among the effects of his father-in-law, Carl Frick, after his death in Germany, about four years ago and describes the conditions of the United States at that time.

In the letter Mr. Frick stated that for three months there had been terrible suffering in the United States and that at the time he was writing there were over 30,000 people out of work in that city and that they were opening public soup lines in all the cities. He said the same condition existed in Baltimore, Cincinnati, Chicago, Boston and St. Louis.

Mr. Frick also said at that time hundreds and hundreds of Germans were seeking their way back to the Old Country and that every outgoing ship was crowded. He said there was much robbery and murder and that there was no money in circulation, and with winter approaching.

Mr. Frick said he imagined they had a terrible winter in front of them. He said all the iron, steel, coal and salt works in the East were locked and that many people were bankrupt. He also said they were putting up recruiting stations for volunteers, as there was war with Cuba and Spain in sight, and the government could not help any more, because there was no more money. He spoke of the untold debts of the railroads having no end and said that the people of the United States were afraid of a revolution among the laboring classes.

Mr. Frick stated that in Pittsburgh, with its population at that time of 100,000, ten banks had failed and suspended business. In the letter Mr. Frick asked the man he was writing to if he could find a man by the name of Ocker. Mr. Bausinger in writing to his cousin asked if he could locate Ocker or some of his relatives in America. Mr. Bausinger in his letter stated that he, as well as many others in Germany, are in terrible straits, as everything still remains very high. Before the war he was postmaster at Sigmaringen and recently he was pensioned. He served during the war in the army and his son is still in government service.

Women in Homes and Society
Countless women devote their whole lives to their homes, while others are in the business world, or find happiness only in society. Whether you are a home woman, a business woman, or a society woman, you know how hard it is to "drag along" day after day, suffering agonies, caused by some female derangement that has developed from overtaxing your strength. MARSEILLES CHURCH
SOCIETIES ENTERTAIN"Tired of Missions," a Pageant,
Is Presented.

Marseilles, O., Aug. 17.—[Special]—The members of the Queen Esther and Standard Bearers societies gave a missionary program Sunday evening at the M. E. church. A pageant "Tired of Missions," was given by twenty members of the societies. Miss Frieda Burkhardt, of Upper Sandusky, gave an address which was followed by a pantomime, "Oh Zion Hasten," given by seven girls with Miss Eloise Emptage as soloist. Following the program a silver offering was taken for mission work. The exercises were in charge of Mrs. E. E. Ruckman.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Chandler celebrated their wedding anniversary Sunday, by entertaining the following guests: Mrs. A. D. Hottenstein, daughter, Lois, and sons, Gerald and Merle, and Benjamin Simmermoher, of Sycamore, and Fred Chandler, of north of town.

Mrs. C. E. Ruckman delivered the sermon Sunday at the union services at Upper Sandusky, on account of the illness of Rev. R. B. Coleman.

The members of Tymochtee grange will hold a festival Thursday evening, on the lawn of the Baker schoolhouse.

OBITUARY

Britton—Henrietta Wynn, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wynn, was born at Green Camp, Ohio, April 12, 1846, and departed this life from the home on Florence street, Marion, at 7.15 p. m., Friday, August 6, 1921, being at the time of her home-going, seventy-five years, three months and twenty-three days of age. When eighteen years of age she was united in marriage to James Dawson, of Pennsylvania. To them were born seven children. Of these, two have died and five survive, namely, Mrs. Ida Harriman, Perry Dawson, Mrs. Clara Durley, Mrs. Elvora Carr, Martin Dawson, all of whom reside in Marion. About forty years ago death deprived her and them of the companionship of the father and husband. Twenty-five years ago she was again united in marriage, this time with William Britton, of Marion. To them two children were born, both of whom have died. About three years ago death deprived her of this companion. For fifteen years Mother Britton has been in a crippled condition and unable to get about much and then with difficulty. Three weeks ago she became seriously ill and, while at times, it seemed she might again recover sufficiently to carry a time with her loved ones, conditions developed that thwarted this and blighted the hope of the anxious ones, and she sweetly, gently slipped away until she slipped away to be with Jesus. To a daughter she said but a few days before, "I would like to stay with you children, but I can not do so. I am going home to be with God." During her illness it was our privilege to visit and pray with her several times. She had united with the Baptist church when young. She was an active worker in the church and a member of the choir. As we talked with her and as we have prayed with her she shouted forth the glory of God. She declared the Christ was her only hope, that if she did not have Christ she would not have anything upon which to lean at such a time.

After prayer with her the last time we saw her while she was conscious we sang some of the songs she used to sing many years ago—"I Am So Glad That Jesus Loves Me," and "O How I Love Jesus."—and she joined in the singing in a surprising way. She was ready to go, to be "Forever with the Lord."

In her going from here she leaves to suffer their bereavement the five children named, eight grandchildren and many other relatives and friends. We rejoice with them that they have left them the testimony of mother that assures them that if they will they may meet her again. In that land where suffering and sorrow never is known; but if they would do so they must live for Him who loved them, and gave Himself for them. May heaven's richest blessings attend them and may there so live that when their summons shall come they may be ready to hear Him say, "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

"Why should our tears in sorrow flow
When God recalls his own,
And bids them leave a world of woe
For an immortal crown?"

"Is not e'en death a gain to those Whose life to God was given?
Gladly to earth their eyes they close,
To open them in heaven."

Their toils are past, their work is done,
And they are fully blest;
They fought the fight, the victory won,
And entered into rest.

"Then let our sorrows cease to flow;
God has recalled his own,
But let our hearts, in every woe,
Still say, 'Thy will be done.'"

BADE RUTH SAYS SMALL TOWN FANS KNOW GAME

Every Big League Club Always Feels at Home

WHEN THE SMALL TOWN
IS VISITED ON A TRIP

Touches on Way To Sweep Out
Bolshevism and Radicalism in the United States.

(BY BADE RUTH.)

Indianapolis, August 17.—Every big league ball club feels at home in a small town because eighty per cent. of us originated there. We have just played exhibition games in Columbus, Louisville and Indianapolis, somewhat smaller than American league cities, but by no means within the general meaning of "small towns."

The Yankees are now ready to go to work on the more serious business for which we came west. These "one night stands," as the stage folks call them, do not include all the comforts of home but it's great getting around the country to meet the folks.

Breaking away from the beaten path of our own league circuit once in a while gives us a chance to see a new and interesting species of that remarkable human exhibit—the American baseball fans—and take it from me the fan in the smaller cities knows the fine points and has all the pep of his metropolitan brother.

Of course, with the race so close as it is now, the exhibition games get on the nerves of the boys to some degree. But just the same, they serve to keep the boys in condition, and relieve the strain of constant championship competition.

Reception at Louisville.

The way we were received in Louisville will linger in my memory for many and many a day. The Louisville Knights of Columbus met us at the station with automobiles, drove us to our hotel and all over the city. J. Raymond Barrett, grand knight of the Louisville council, and the rest of the members are entitled to our thanks.

It seemed like old times to meet Brother Benjamin, who was in St. Mary's school in Baltimore when I was a lad there. He met me and took me out to St. Xavier college, which is really a high school. The cadet battalion was drawn up to meet me and we all went to the chapel where the organization and band had assembled.

I was introduced as a speaker, which gave me a laugh. I'm supposed to be a ball player and let Bill Percy pinch hit for me in the speaking line. Just the same I love to meet the kids. It is not so many years ago since I was in a school of the sort under the kindly guidance of Brother Benjamin. I was my counsellor and friend. Of course, I realize that all these boys cannot be champion home run hitters, and to tell the truth, I'm glad that they can't or otherwise there would be an oversupply of circuit swatters and my niche in baseball's hall of fame would be pretty insecure.

If I Were An Orator.

"If I were an orator I might go ahead and develop a high sounding theme about the splendid democracy of our country.

"These little chaps are the boys who are going to make radicalism and Bolshevism impossible in this country. One of the little fellows in the chapel came to me when we went to the ball field where I hit several autographed baseballs into the crowd of kids and let them scramble for them. This kid kept away from the rest and asked me how I became successful. I'll be darned if I could tell him except that I played the game squarely all the time and hit the ball with all my might. That goes for about everything else in the world, whether it's baseball or anything else.

Any one who expects to win has to play the game squarely and hit the ball with all their might.

Another Amusing Incident.

Another amusing incident marked the trip into Louisville. While we were getting ready to meet the Colonels, a fellow who told me he had come over 100 miles from the Kentucky mountains, came out to me and said: "Mr. Ruth, will you shake hands with me." "Sure," I answered him, and we shook hands, when he released me from his grip, he said: "Well, I always wanted to say, that I shook hands with a man who made $50,000 a year and now I've done it. I guess I'll be willing to go home and tell the folks about it." That's a funny one a fellow wanting to shake hands with me, and traveling over 100 miles in order to do it. I'll tell the world that when I was in St. Mary's school fifty cents was a large cent and $50 a fortune."

VELOCK ON SPORTS

Forest Hills, Long Island, Aug. 17.—Molla Bjurstedt Mallory is the greatest woman tennis player in the world.

This was the verdict today of thousands of ardent doctees of the not game who saw the Norse girl sweep Mile Lenglen. Lenglen, of France, from the courts in the brief space of one set.

Technically, Mile Lenglen may still be the international champion, but none who saw her default to the grim, determined and brilliant Molla after a swift and humiliating defeat, by one set, attached any importance to mere technicality.

Wile Lenglen's sudden and surprising action in quitting the court came like a bolt from the clear sky. She pleaded inability to continue the match owing to a sudden recurrence of after effects from an attack of bronchitis and was led to the clubhouse coughing and weeping hysterically. Today, at Forest Hills inn, where Mile Lenglen is stopping with her mother, it was said she will be confined to her room for a day or so. Her physician, according to the attaches at the inn, said her case was not a serious one, but that she must have quiet and careful attention.

The one big regret of tennis fans today, lies in the fact that Mile Lenglen did not finish the match.

Coming to the United States, hailed as the greatest woman tennis star, Mile Lenglen led American tennis fans to expect great things of her and the thousands who journeyed out here, yesterday, to see her meet Mrs. Mallory expected to see the tennis match of the century. Within recent memory, another French star took part in the "battle of the century." Fair-haired Georges Carpentier, the giant-killer from France, came to our shores to uncrown Jack Dempsey. He failed to accomplish his purpose, but he went down to a glorious defeat and the same had been expected of Mile Lenglen, either in defeat or victory.

The French girl admittedly did not play her best game. The writ-ter saw Suzanne in several matches during the recent Olympic games in Antwerp and it can be said without hesitation that the Lenglen who faced Mrs. Mallory was not the Lenglen of 1919. Yet she showed several flashes of her real ability in the short space of time she was on the courts and no competent tennis critic who saw her can say that she did not display the earmarks of a finished player.

At her best, however, she could not have beaten Mrs. Mallory, yesterday. Since the Norse girl has come to prominence in the tennis world, this writer has seen her in several of her most brilliant victories, but never before has she displayed the dash and brilliance that was hers against Lenglen.

Today's program offered several matches of unusual promise in the third round. Mrs. Mallory drew a comparatively unknown opponent in Miss Florence Sheldon, but Miss Mary K. Browne and Miss Edith Sigourney and Mrs. Benjamin Cole, national clay-courts champion, and Miss Martha Bayard, a player of great promise, were scheduled to furnish some thrills. Mrs. May Sutton Bundy was slated to meet Mrs. Edward Raymond and Miss Phyllis Walsh, the Philadelphia star, was to clash with Miss Helen Gilcaudau, on the exhibition courts.

Meanwhile, the women's doubles and the girls' national singles and doubles were to get under way in earnest.

BASEBALL

Tagging the Braves.

The lowly Phils held the Pirates to a even break, but they gained a half game on the Giants, thanks to Babe Adams' winning of the second half of the twin bill.

Those ambitious Dodgers took the measure of McGraw's men with Grimes on the mound, by making a three-run rally in the ninth.

The winning streak of the Browns was broken by Detroit. The Tigers hammered Van Gilder to advantage.

The once-great Alex. held no fears for the Braves, who knocked him into the showers in the sixth, Cruise hit a homer into the right-field bleachers, one of the longest possible hits in the big-league parks.

Home run hitters, yesterday: King, Philadelphia, two; Cruise, Braves; Sieler, Whittell; Johnston, Brooklyn; Blair, Detroit; Barnhart, Pirates; Tierney, Pirates; and Olson, Brooklyn, one each.

SAYS WORLD IS SAFE IN HARDING'S HANDS

Viscount Northcliffe. Publisher.
Writes of Impressions.

VISIT TO WHITE HOUSE

President's Strength. He Thinks.
Lies in Quiet Simplicity of Purpose—Own Master.

Viscount Northcliffe, famous British publisher, now enroute to the Far East on a trip around the world, spent an hour and a half with President Harding in Washington on July 28. The following article, giving Northcliffe's impression of the president, is published by courtesy of the United Press:

BY VISCOUNT NORTHCLIFFE:
The circular room at the executive offices of the White House, where President Harding receives visitors, is spacious, lofty and almost cool; the simple, tasteful decorations, like the few pieces of furniture, are in keeping with its dimensions, but the impression of harmonious largeness they give is effaced by the impression of human largeness made by the president's own personality.

Once before, as he kindly reminded me, I had met Mr. Harding and I clearly remembered his finely proportioned, handsome figure. Well over six feet in height, broad-shouldered, with a torso like that of a Greek athlete, regular features, square jaw, small hands and feet, and ease of strength in his movements, he is probably the most physically attractive man in the long list of presidential residents at the White House.

His tropical white suit suits him admirably. There is no pose, no affectation of simplicity, for he is simple, without affectation. He is conscious of the great power and dignity of his position, but he wears that consciousness as though he had been trained from youth to wear the mighty burden that lies on his shoulders today.

On the president's desk lay a copy of his newspaper, the Marion Star, with a simple slip address, such as is used by American newspapers sent through the post. President Harding is probably prouder of that newspaper than anything else he has done for he made it, and in making it, learned the ways of human kind. No man can achieve the difficult task of creating a successful daily newspaper without finding out a great deal about human nature, with its strength and its weaknesses, its good sides and its bad, and, above all, the redeeming virtue of simple kindness and common sense in human affairs.

I could not help thinking as he spoke of his early life studies, of law work, as an insurance writer, and finally as a journalist and newspaper proprietor, how singularly his training had fitted him for his present task.

There was an almost wistful note in his voice when he described how the thing that gives him the most pleasure in life, pleasure that never stales, is to stand in the mechanical department during the last hour before his paper goes to press.

The rush and emotion of making up the last page, of doing the work, of seeing that it is done swiftly and well, the sense of triumph that is born when a well-made page is ready for the foundry, and the pride of achievement as the presses begin to hum, and the first copies are sped on their way to distributing centers.

It is characteristic of the man that he has made his newspaper a cooperative undertaking in which editors, managers and heads of mechanical departments are shareholders, taking their proportion of the profits in addition to salaries. "Sometimes," said the president, "I think they do better when I am not there. They work splendidly as a team and are proud of their work."

We passed for a moment into the cabinet room, an unpretentious and businesslike chamber, where the president meets members of the administration in council, each of whom sits according to seniority of the department he represents. The president is naturally in the chair, but opposite, at the other end of the table, sits the vice president—an innovation which Mr. Harding and others with him regard as eminently proper and useful. The United States cabinet does not possess executive power. That is vested in the president. It is rather a council for the exchange of ideas upon current administrative problems.

President Harding loves to hear the views of others, and he gives them full consideration before deciding upon a course for which the responsibility is his alone.

It was delightful to hear him praise the abilities of the distinguished men who assist him. Could they have heard what the president said of them they would surely have felt that they had in him not only a chief, but an affectionate friend.

I may be wrong, but I have a very definite impression after being privileged to spend an hour and a half in President Harding's genial company. I think he is very definitely his own master, and not "the man" of any section or coterie. The broad good humored patience he displays toward everything and everybody; as though to leave ample room for it and them to be presented to his mind in the most favorable aspects; the ready wit with which he laughs at himself and underlies the comical side of events; but above all the broad common sense that comes out in the expression of his definite opinions, combine to convey the notion that here is a man who will quietly make up his mind without undue regard to any influence, and that when his mind is made up it will be found to be somewhere very near a common sense center of gravity.

I came away from Washington not only pleased—any man would have been pleased after so kind a reception—but comforted, because I felt that the destinies of the American people, and the influence which their action must have upon the welfare of the hands of the big-limbed, well built, straight forward son of Ohio whom the suffrages of an overwhelming majority of his fellow citizens placed in the chair of Lincoln.

The 'Easy' Pays For Itself

The "EASY" Vacuum Electric Washing Machine will pay for itself out of what it saves and then pay you a profit of $10 to $15 a month besides.

That is the experience of thousands of housewives who have tried the "EASY" and found that it does their washing satisfactorily.

They know that the "EASY," by air pressure and suction most nearly duplicates the work of human hands, but almost without effort on their part.

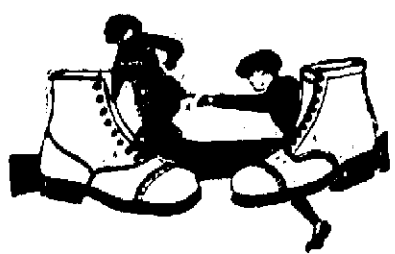

The hot soapy water is forced through the garments by air pressure and then drawn back again by suction, removing every last particle of dirt. No rubbing, dragging or tearing. Sixty times a minute this happens, the vacuum cups taking a forward position with each down stroke.

Operates without vibration. Wringer starts, reverses and swings to any position, instantly. Gas heater heats water to any desired temperature.

Let us demonstrate the "EASY" in your own home and prove it does even more than we say.

TWO REGIMENTS TAKE UP TREKK TO CAMP PERRY

Many Visit Camp South of Town—Military Band Concert Last Evening.

Deviating slightly from their original itinerary in order to view the home of their commander-in-chief, soldiers of the Second and Third Infantry regiments, United States Army, this morning marched by the Mt. Vernon avenue residence of President Harding and were reviewed at that point by their column commander, Colonel Paul Giddings. Instead of going directly through Marion on Main street, the column of troops came into the city on Indiana avenue, north on State street to Church street, past to Mt. Vernon avenue, past President Harding's Marion home to Greenwood street, north to Center street and north on Main street out the Bucyrus pike.

Wagon Train.
A wagon train made up of the supply companies, of the two regiments headed the column. Field kitchens, water carts, machine-gun companies and foot soldiers followed. There were two mule-drawn ambulances in charge of the medical detachments.

Colonel Giddings pointed out that this is the third march of the Second and Third regiments through Marion. The first was during General Harrison's campaign to the Indian wars and the second march took place during the civil war.

Camp Tonight Near Wyandot.
The march today took the soldiers to their camp along the Sandusky river, one and one-half miles east of Wyandot. They followed the Bucyrus pike to the junction with the road leading to Oceola, and along this road to the camp near the river. Tomorrow will be a day of rest for the hikers and they will resume their march Friday morning. Following the national rifle matches at Camp Perry, the Second Infantry will go to Fort Sheridan, Illinois, and the Third to Fort Snelling, Minnesota.

While it is expected that the Third Infantry will hike from Camp Perry to its new station at Fort Snelling, one of the officers stated this morning that no definite information regarding this hike has been received. He said word was received this morning that the troops from Fort Snelling are now enroute to Camp Perry and the march of the Third depends upon whether the soldiers from Snelling bring their equipment to Camp Perry.

It All Depends.
If this equipment is brought, he said the Third will march to Minnesota, otherwise the troops would not be sufficiently equipped to such a march and the trip would be made by rail.

Hundreds of Marionites visited the camp of the soldiers on the E. Waddell farm, four miles south of the city on the Marion-Delaware road, Tuesday afternoon and night. Automobile parties started out to the camp early in the afternoon and by the time the soldiers were eating their evening meal this line of cars became a steady string.

A concert was given by the military band at 6:30 o'clock last evening at the camp and continued for about an hour. By that time the crowd of visitors had grown so large and the automobiles so numerous that military guards were stationed along the road to direct traffic and prevent a jam.

300 Horses and Mules.
Many of the soldiers took advantage of the opportunity to visit Marion. Some went to theaters and others walked about the city. Some were footsore, but this did not prevent them from making the four-mile hike to town. Motorists brought many in and some cars were filled completely with soldiers, the owners taking the men for a ride around the city.

This morning at 6:20 o'clock the head of the column of troops left the camp and the last of the soldiers got away at about 7:25 o'clock. They marched through the heavy rain, but the shower was nearly over by the time they reached the city. Included in the equipment of the two regiments are 335 animals and fifty-five vehicles.

Collision Between Kessel and Slusser Cars—Injuries Not Serious.

The Slusser car was turned completely over and Miss Slusser pinned beneath. Mrs. Sarlls managed to free herself from the car, but Miss Slusser had to be helped out. Both were taken to the City hospital nearby. The Slusser car was a total wreck and the other car was but slightly damaged.
